innova_3030_icf. Thank You for using Macfixit I agree with the. and fix all the probs I've got with my PCQ: Eclipse not merging files by default? I'm working with Python and Eclipse, and I wanted to make sure that two files never accidentally get out of sync. When I tried to press Shift+F6, all I got was the option to "Update Project", which didn't do anything (in its default configuration) for my file (there are other options, and Shift+F6 defaults to them). I searched around, and found instructions to change preferences to make sure the program doesn't have the option to "Create | Update Project." But those instructions do not apply to my Eclipse installation. I even went to the preferences, and selected the "Java" section, and there the menu item was still active, even though I had made sure it was grayed out! Can anyone tell me what I'm missing? Is there a configuration somewhere that's going to make Eclipse, by default, merge two projects? A: Project -> Merge That's how you do it on a per file basis. A: Shift+F6 is supposed to be used for updating project, not for merging. See "Update Project" in Preferences (Java) -> Code Style -> Code Templates -> Change/Refactor -> Update Project. I suppose that Eclipse is not configured to merge by default. But you can do it.
