To start off with Photoshop, you need to learn how to do a variety of different things, such as how to create new layers, add text, crop images, and edit and animate artwork. What Are Layers? Every element in Photoshop is on a layer. The way you work in Photoshop is to layer elements on top of each other to create a final image or to manipulate an image to get the effect you want. Photoshop is the industry standard for layered editing because it is easy to work with and is supported by almost every image editor available. Layers act as a protective barrier between all the elements on that layer, and if you choose to, you can cut out anything on a layer that you don't want to use. Then, all you have to do is put the piece that you want to use on the layer in the way that you want and you can access that element without messing up anything else. [Cardiotoxicity of the antitumor agents dacarbazine and cyclophosphamide]. The antitumor agents nitrogen mustards (DAC) and cyclophosphamide (CYCLO) are two of the most widely used drugs for treating cancer. Treatment with nitrogen mustards is well known for its cardiotoxicity, which is manifested as cardiac necrosis or cardiomyopathy. CYCLO is known to produce minimal cardiotoxic effects. We report the results of an animal study undertaken to assess the cardiotoxic effects of DAC in rats. In a double-blind, randomised, experimental, prospective, controlled trial, 15 Wistar rats were treated with DAC (100 mg/kg/day, by ip injection) for 15 days, and 15 controls received the vehicle (saline solution). Serial echocardiographic and electrocardiographic evaluations were performed before, at the end, and 30 days after the start of treatment. Cardiac histopathology was obtained on the 15th day of treatment. Echocardiographic evaluation showed a decrease of left ventricular systolic volume ($p=0.001$), ejection fraction ($p=0.011$), fraction shortening ($p=0.002$), and fractional shortening ($p=0.002$). Echocardiographic evaluation showed a decrease of left ventricular systolic volume ($p=0.005$), ejection fraction ($p=0.002$), fraction shortening ($p=0.006$), and fractional shortening ($p=0.001$). The electrocardiographic evaluation showed a decrease of QTc with DC of the low rate (pA customer service representative has an opportunity to make a difference! Does she want to do so? [Grading of liver biopsies: from expert evaluation to WHO: experience in a university hospital]. In the past, a grading system was used for liver biopsies where the amount of fibrosis was evaluated as a percentage of involvement and the degree of inflammation as a mean score. In 2004, the World Health Organization (WHO) issued a new classification which, in its turn, contained a three-grade fibrosis scoring system. The aims of this study were to evaluate the suitability of the new WHO system for the classification of liver biopsies and to analyse its reliability in our hospital. We carried out a retrospective study of the histopathological reports on 247 biopsies from liver donors. The findings were graded according to the new system. Concordance was evaluated between the WHO and the former scoring system. We tested the diagnostic agreement between the two classifications with the Kappa coefficient. Finally, we determined the reliability of the new system by calculating the sensitivity, specificity, positive and negative predictive values. The histological findings were correlated with the clinical history. Concordance between both systems for fibrosis was good, and for inflammation excellent. Diagnostic agreement between the two systems was good. The results obtained with the new system were statistically reliable, with sensitivity (68-85%), specificity (71-85%), positive and negative predictive values (66-84%) in all grades of fibrosis. In our hospital, WHO grading of liver biopsies is appropriate, providing good results in terms of sensitivity and reliability. It is complementary to conventional scoring methods. Ask HN: How do I make money with my web/graphic design skills? - nikhildr I just moved to Germany and studying Computer Science at university. I have an amazing passion for graphic design. At home, I make websites and other artworks for my friends and family. I consider myself creative and artistic, but I have no idea what I can do for a living as a graphic designer. So... Does anybody know? Thanks in advance and have fun. ===== Customaximus Wouldn't your art background lend you well to particular jobs in this area? I have recently worked with a local Graphic Designer where we had pretty distinct skillsets. The work combined art and design skills (think logo and design concepts) which I thought would be a great fit for the work. One of the main things I noticed was he would often keep a tree branch of
