Raymond Pierre François De Nardis (; 24 June 1846 - 21 January 1925) was a French politician and was the eldest son of the Count of Nardis. He was Minister of Justice under Georges Clemenceau. He was a member of the French Academy of Moral and Political Sciences, awarded the Legion of Honour in 1892, and an Officer of the Legion of Honour in 1898. In 1906 he was elected as a Radical member of the Académie française, a post which he held until 1927, and which he only relinquished at the age of 72. Bibliography

After the big news that Toontrack has released the third installment in the Metal Guitar Gods EZmix Pack series, we thought we would compile a. P.2d 422. [4] In Wilson, supra, the defendant was convicted of 12 burglaries of person and related offenses. At trial, he admitted 19 burglaries but asserted an alibi with respect to 11 of them. The remaining eight burglaries were referred to in the aggravating circumstances instruction and were charged as substantive offenses. Id. at 158, 98 P.2d at 423. The court held that the failure to list the eight substantive burglaries in the written jury instructions was prejudicial error. The court first discussed the "general rule" that evidence introduced for one purpose "is not to be received for another" and then set forth the several circumstances in which the general rule does not apply. Id. at 159, 98 P.2d at 424. In accordance with the general rule, the court held that the evidence of the eight substantive burglaries was not admissible to show an intent to commit, a plan to commit, or a scheme or design. However, the court held that it was admissible for the limited purpose of showing the defendant's identity. Id. at 160, 98 P.2d at 424. Finally, the court held that the admission of the evidence was prejudicial error because it introduced for the jury's consideration "other crimes evidence of such a character as to destroy the defendant's right to a fair trial." Id. [5] Following the taking of the jury's verdict, we requested that both parties brief the question of whether the theft of the fence posts was relevant to any issue in this case. [6] The court did give, as an instruction, the statement that evidence of a previous burglary is admissible to show the state of mind of the accused. W.R.E. 404(b) (1990). [7] We note that the United States Supreme Court has held that even if the past incidents are established by sufficient evidence to have been properly admitted at trial, the trial court must still find that the probative value of the evidence substantially outweighs the potential for unfair prejudice. See Old Chief v. United States, ___ U.S. ___, ___-___, 117
